“Lasswade High School fosters a culture of excellence, built on the values of Creativity, Effort, Kindness, and Respect”

Lasswade High School is a secondary state school located in Bonnyrigg, Midlothian, Scotland. With a student roll exceeding 1,500, it is one of the larger secondary schools in the region. The school is part of The Lasswade Centre, a multi-million-pound investment by Midlothian Council aimed at providing an integrated service for the community. Lasswade High School shares its facilities with additional community services, offering students modern educational resources and opportunities for success. The curriculum is designed to develop skills, qualities, and qualifications that prepare students for life beyond school.

The facilities include specialized departments for Business Studies, Home Economics, Music, Art & Design, Science, and Technology, along with a library, computer room, kitchen, dining area, and sports center. Historically, Lasswade High School traces its origins back to 1615, when a parish school was first established in Lasswade.
